Editor's Note

By Jim Stoutjesdyk

Welcome to the latest edition of MoneyTalk$! I want to thank everyone who participated in our special MoneyTalk$ mail bid sale last issue. Bidding was very competitive and prices realized totaled $116,483. We are planning another mail bid sale in the future and I invite anyone interested in consigning material to please contact me.

We've had a very busy summer here at Superior with two major coin auctions, a sports sale, and a trip to the annual ANA convention. Although the economy hasn't seemed to improve much, the collectibles market has held steady and the future looks bright. Many items are still at very reasonable price levels and now is an excellent time to add to your holdings.

We are very pleased to announce the addition of Kevin Lipton to our staff as Director of Numismatics. As one of the leading wholesalers of rare coins in the nation, Kevin brings to Superior a fundamental element that had been missing from the company's broad scope of services. Kevin's ability to trade coins wholesale opens up a unique opportunity to Superior's clientele to acquire coins at exceptional prices. We are also actively buying everything from single coins to multi-million dollar collections. Contact Kevin for details and payment by immediate check, or bank wire presents no problem.

Superior is continuing to diversify in the collectibles field and October marks our entry into the art market with the William Arbeiter Collection of Art Glass. This October 17th sale features over 400 examples of art glass and hand decorated lamps from the 1880s to the 1930s. Included are such renowned names as Tiffany, Galle, Daum Nancy, Loetz, Handel and Pairpoint. These highly prized pieces are among the most beautiful items in collectable art. Contact Bill Conroy for more information.

November features a trio of interesting collectibles auctions. Superior is proud to have been chosen to sell the Mel Blanc archive of Warner Brothers animation art. This November 5th sale also includes Walter Lantz cells and Disney original drawings. November 6th is the date of

Rare 1903 Louisiana Purchase Exposition Gold Dollar Proof In Original Frame

In 1903, a gold dollar coin was struck to commemorate the Louisiana Purchase Exposition held in St. Louis the following year.

A total of 17,500 pieces were struck, featuring the bust of William McKinley on the obverse with an inscription and branch on the reverse.

One hundred specimens were struck with a special Proof finish and distributed to Exposition and government officials. These Proofs were affixed to imprinted cards, with the coins secured with cords and a red wax seal. Each card included the notation: "This is to certify that the accompanying Louisiana Purchase Exposition gold dollar struck at the Mint of the United States, Philadelphia, in accordance with an Act of Congress approved June 28th 1902, is one of the first one hundred impressions from the McKinley dies."

We are very pleased to offer one of these very rare Proof gold 1903 McKinley commemorative dollars in the original frame as issued. This very historic item would make an impressive addition to any office or den wall, not to mention a fabulous investment. In the past, these coins have traded for as much as $25,000.

Call to reserve this unique numismatic treasure, as we can offer it for the low price of only $9,900

'FRESH' PROOF SET DEAL

We recently purchased a small group of original proof sets from an elderly gentleman who had ordered them directly from the Mint back in the 1950s and 1960s.

They were still in the original mailing boxes and we were the first to open them since they were mailed nearly 30 years ago! Best of all, each proof set remains sealed in its original brown envelope—unopened by anyone. (We did open a few just to satisfy our curiosity, and they are really nice!)

We offer these prisine sets, while they last, at the following special prices:

Examine The Fascinating History Of The Presidential Inaugural Medal

◀ THE PRESIDENT'S MEDAL 1789-1977

Tells the fascinating story—from George Washington to Jimmy Carter—of this old and venerable American tradition. The medals (many designed by great sculptors such as Augustus Saint Gaudens, Paul Manship, and Jo Davidson) exemplify what has become over the decades a distinctive national art form. Based on an exhibition of inaugural medals held at the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, this book has become one of the standard references in the field.

As excellent companion volume to the above (and below!), this hardbound book features illustrations of each medal, mintage figures and values. A short section at the end discusses official inaugural plates.

United States Inaugural Medals

Every four years, on the first Tuesday in November, the President-elect is chosen. The designs for the inaugural medals must be created, approved and produced by January 20th so that the medals are available for sale to the public.

We don't know the results of the '92 election yet, but we felt the timing was perfect to offer our customers the opportunity to buy their past favorite presidents' inaugural medals now. These are all bargain prices so take advantage of this offering—while they last.

Ancients Update

By David Vagi

Welcome to the "ancients" section of MoneyTalk$. Within the next few pages are treasures of the ancient world, some more than two thousand years old.

Ancients are quite different from any other area of numismatics. Unlike high-grade modern coins they can be handled with ease and confidence.

And each is an individual work of art, as no two are exactly alike. Each tells a different story about the people, places and events of the ancient world.

Ancient deities and mythological figures are frequently depicted on ancient coins as are famous leaders such as Julius Caesar, Augustus or Alexander the Great. Political and religious symbolism are frequent themes in the designs of ancient coins.

Thus, the ways to collect ancient coins are virtually unlimited, insuring a lifetime of enjoyment as your collecting tastes change and grow—either as a specialist or a generalist. Few other areas of our hobby offer this flexibility.

Ancient coins are also more stable than most areas of numismatics. They tend to appreciate in value at a steady pace—seldom rising or falling significantly—though high-quality coins usually fare best.

This means you are unlikely to take a significant loss when the market weakens.

We will be unveiling a collector program in the next issue of MoneyTalk$ with ten popular categories for you to choose from. Let us guide you as you build a meaningful collection of ancient coins and gain insight into the people, politics, art, myth and mystery or ancient civilizations.

In this issue of MoneyTalk$ we offer a selection of individual coins and several "hoard specials." Spanning more than 15 centuries and the distance from England to the Middle East, certainly there is something for everyone!

Our offerings here represent only a small part of our stock. So, if you've always wanted a coin with a special person, deity or animal, or one struck in a certain city, contact me directly to find out if we have one. If we don't, I'll do my best to get one.

Until the next issue of MoneyTalk$, happy hunting!

GALLIC GOLD STATERS

Used During The Invasion Of Gaul By Julius Caesar

These gold staters, each about 16 karats pure, circulated in Gaul (modern-day France) at the time Julius Caesar and his Legions were conquering Gaul in the name of Rome.

For eight years, from 58 to 50 B.C., Caesar's army won great victories and suffered humbling setbacks in Gaul. Eventually the might of Rome overwhelmed Gaul, which remained a Roman territory for the next few centuries.

As the Gallic chieftains gathered soldiers, supplies and weapons to defend their homeland against the armies of Caesar, the gold staters offered here were perhaps the most widely used coins of high value.

Caesar's victory in Gaul won him great praise and set the stage for his becoming the most powerful man in Rome. However, several of his peers, including M. Junius Brutus, took exception to his lust for power and assassinated him in the Ides (15th) of March in 44 B.C.

Obverse Reverse

The reverse of these coins, attributed to "The Morini" tribe, show a disjointed horse rendered in Gallic style. Various symbols and ornaments appear in thge fields. The obverse does not have a design.

We found only ten coins in a group recently offered which met our standards for centering and high grade (VF-EF). The horse was significantly off center on most examples.

Act now to reserve one of the ten hand-selected coins we acquired. Each coin is guaranteed authentic, about 2,000 years old, and is guaranteed to please. Sold on a first-come, first-serve basis.

THE POPULAR RHODIAN SILVER DIDRACHMS

At Wholesale Prices!

Rhodes was at the peak of its power during the period 307-167 B.C., when these coins were minted. It withstood a siege by Demetrios Poliorcetes in 304 B.C. and remained a commercial and military power until 167 B.C., when Rome declared Delos a free port.

Rhodes was also the site of one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World: The Colossus of Rhodes. The Colossus was a large bronze statue of Helios—said to be over 100 feet tall—built by Chares of Lindos. The Colossus stood for over fifty years until it was demolished by an earthquake in 224 B.C.

These coins show on their obverse the facing head of Helios and on their reverse a rose and bud, which is a punning allusion to the name of the city and island.

Only a few remain. Select fine condition.

Silver Coins Of The Ancient Greeks from the plains of Thessaly

The pride of the ancient Greek city-states was shattered by Alexander the Great and his successors who ruled these independent peoples under a central government. Oddly enough, it took the Romans to oust Philip V, the last of the Macedonian kings to rule Greece. When the Romans proclaimed the freedom of the Greeks, many independent coinage issues were struck. One of the most diverse and important was struck by the Thessalian League in the fertile plains of central Greece from 194-146 B.C.

The largest of these issues was the Double Victoriatus, a silver coin weighing more than six grams. A vigorous portrait of Zeus, wearing a wreath of oak, appears on the obverse, while the reverse shows a full-length statue of Athena brandishing a shield and spear. Thus, two of the most famous of the ancient Greek gods appear on these coins!

Like most ancient coins, the coins from this small group are slightly off center. All of the coins we offer are pleasing and grade Very Fine or better. While they last. . . .

An owl by any other name. . .

If imitation is the highest form of flattery, then the ancient Greek city of Athens is deserving of praise, for as far away as Afghanistan and Arabia the purity and weight of their coins was trusted . . . and imitated.

These coins, Silver Drachms of the Sabaeans and Himyarites of Arabia, were struck in one of the true frontiers of the Western World. They imitated the coins of Athens which featured the helmeted head of Athena on the obverse and an owl, the symbol of Athens, on the reverse.

The style makes these Arabian coins distinctive from the Athenian "Owl" coins they imitate. The Greek letters are often jumbled and—most importantly—they bear the Sabaean letter "n" prominently on the cheek of Athena.

Superior acquired a small hoard of 30 coins—the only hoard we've seen offered of these scarce coins in recent memory. The small size of the group speaks for itself!

Each coin shows the results of its crude striking on a thick, rough-cut planchet in the 3rd-2nd centuries B.C. They grade F-VF and are excellent for the issue.

Reserve for your collection one of these historic treasures which testifies to the Western World's first international trade coin.

It's A Family Matter

- Philip I — A.D. 244-249
- Philip II — A.D. 247-249
- Octacilia Severa, wife of Philip I and mother of Philip II*

Philip I became emperor of Rome upon the death of Gordian III. Philip was a huge man—close to 7 feet tall—and was of Arab decent. The chief event of his reign (and that of his son's) was the celebration—in A.D. 248—of the 1000th anniversary of Rome. It was one year later that the emperor and his son took to battle against the rebellious legions of Decius and both were defeated and killed.

SILVER OF THE ROMAN FRONTIER

In Rome's earliest days, before it became a mighty Republic and Empire, it was especially vulnerable to attacks from the Celtic tribes to the north.

One such tribe, the Cenomani, struck the silver coins we offer here more than 2,000 year ago!

Occupying the part of Central Europe known as "the silver belt," the Cenomani had migrated from Northwestern Europe.

The Romans and the Etruscans knew these war-like people only as a constant threat, as they often made raids into the Italian Peninsula.

When Hannibal was crossing the Alps to invade Italy, these Celtic tribes offered him their assistance.

The design on these silver drachms is imitative of coins struck in Massalia (modern Marseilles, France). It features the Celtic rendering of Artemis on the obverse and a lion on the reverse.

These silver drachms are distinctive works of Celtic art struck on the unusual cup-shaped, rectangular planchet. They date from the 2nd to 1st centuries B.C. We only have 10 coins in stock, so reserve one of these intriguing coins for your collection at a low price today.

Silver of the Severans

A powerful and enduring dynasty was founded in A.D. 193 by Septimius Severus who triumphed over several adversaries following the assassination of the emperor Commodus, an insane megalomaniac who brought a shameful end to the era of Adoptive Emperors.

The "Severan Dynasty" marks a milestone in Roman History as Septimius Severus was from North Africa and his wife, Julia Domna, was from Syria. The makeup of the Roman ruling class had irreversibly changed from proper Romans to provincials.

This Severan Dynasty lasted for nearly half a century. Building its foundation was a family of four: the father Septimius, his wife Julia, and their two sons, Caracalla and Geta.

In the end, however, it was the family's foundation which crumbled. Septimius Severus died in York, England while on a military campaign, the brutal Caracalla murdered his younger brother, Geta, and Julia starved herself to death after Caracalla was murdered while traveling in the Near East.

Antoniniani of the Gallic Empire

The Roman Empire was under seige from all fronts during the late 3rd century A.D.– including from within. One of the Empire's most celebrated generals of the day, Postumus, rebelled in A.D. 259 and founded his own pseudo-Roman (Gallic) empire in what is much of modern France, Spain, Britain and Germany.

During this age of military anarchy, coins from the Empire bore highly stylized and severe portraits with short hair and a cropped beard if one was worn. In stark contrast with the Imperial coins are those of the Gallic Empire with their artistic portraits, flowing locks and long beards. However, other Roman conventions remained intact, including the radiate crown, latin legends and the treatment of reverse types.

The coins we offer are bronze Antoniniani from the last few years of this short-lived Empire struck by the rulers Victorinus, Tetricus I and Tetricus II. All are nearly Mint State and guanteed to have a sharp, artistic and detailed portrait. We have a very limited quantity, so it's first-come, first-serve!

SILVER OF THE EMPIRE

Throughout ancient Roman history silver was the metal of most transactions. Gold was the metal of high-level trade and government business, whereas bronze was useful only for low-level transactions we would make with a dollar bill or change.

Silver was the metal of choice for everything in between, and silver coins were the medium of exchange.

The Silver Denarius was the workhorse of the Roman economy for more than 400 years. Its successor was the double denarius or "Antoninianus," which lasted nearly a century.

From the start the Antoninianus was a farce. With the silver content of only 1 1/2 denarii, it was tariffed at 2 denarii. This measure was taken by the emperor Caracalla in A.D. 214 to combat a failing economy that required debasement of the Silver Denarius.

These two sister denominations circulated side-by-side for only a short time. One of those times was during the reign of Gordian III, A.D. 238-244, when both were issued in relatively equal amounts.

Superior offers here a pair of the 1750-year-old silver coins of Gordian III (Denarius and Antoninianus). Both of these historic coins are Superb Extremely Fine, bear the portrait of the emperor, and are guaranteed to please.

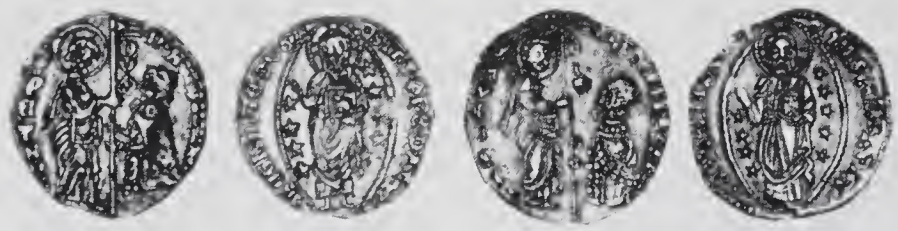
MEDIEVAL GOLD HOARD FROM THE FALL CONSTANTINOPLE

Recent excavations have unearthed an amazing medieval gold coin hoard buried about the time of the Fall of Constantinople 1453 A.D. A wealthy merchant probably concealed his fortune from the advancing Turkish army and died defending the last stronghold of the Byzantine Empire, never to recover his treasure. The actual events are conjecture, but the gold is tangible! The vast majority of the hoard was Venetian gold ducats, among the world's greatest coins of international commerce from 1200 A.D. to 1900 A.D. These gold coins from Venice were so widely accepted that the price of grain in Mecca, the Islamic Holy City, was quoted in units of these Christian coins with Christ and St. Mark on them.



Gold Ducats of Chios struck 1421-1436 A.D. by the Duke of Milan
Extreme Fine Condition. . . . . Special $137.50

Due to their importance, Venetian ducats were widely imitated by many local rulers across the Mediterranean Sea. We are fortunate to have acquired about 3% of this ducat hoard—coins struck on the Greek island of Chios, located in the Aegean Sea near Turkey. Chios was controlled by Genoa, the archrival of Venice, from 1319 A.D. to 1421 A.D. Philip Maria, Duke of Milan, took control in Genoa in 1421 A.D. This gave him control of Chios as well, and he began issuing crude, pale gold ducats from Chios for trade.

At first glance the ducats appear Venetian, but the name of the Venetian doge has been deleted and reads, "D. Mediolani" (Duke of Milan). In addition, "S.M. Veneti" (St. Mark of Venice) has been replaced by "S. Petrus" (St. Peter) crowning the kneeling Duke of Milan. The reverse still shows a full figure of Christ surrounded by the stars of heaven. A similar Chios ducat is cataloged as Friedberg—17 at $850.00.

These fascinating artifacts of medieval commerce weigh about 3.50 grams of pale gold and are struck with a wide range of engraving skill, typical of far-flung outposts of western culture. They are Extremely Fine, though sometimes weak or flat from uneven pressure. Dies can be rusty, and flans can be irregular in shape.

NEW TREND IN EXAMINING RARE COINS

If you have recently attended rare coin auction sales, you may have observed that the latest trend in examining rare coins is in a darkly lit room and a powerful single source of lighting. The purpose behind this type of viewing is rather simple. By eliminating outside light sources and allowing a single powerful light source to provide the lighting, we find that glare is no longer a problem and the coin can be maneuvered to provide more controlled visibility.

The interesting feature here is that this manner of viewing coins is being utilized by several of the major grading laboratories and thus by utilizing the same principle, one is more likely to be able to examine a coin and better ascertain how the coin will be graded if sent in for a certificate.

We are pleased to announce that Superior Stamp & Coin is distributing both the light source and the magnifier which are being used to grade coins by some of these grading laboratories. It has been no secret within the trade that our line of halogen lights and magnifiers have been great sellers. We are pleased to provide this listing of our more popular products. We have placed an asterisk beside the two items being used by these laboratories. All represent great quality and will serve you for many years.

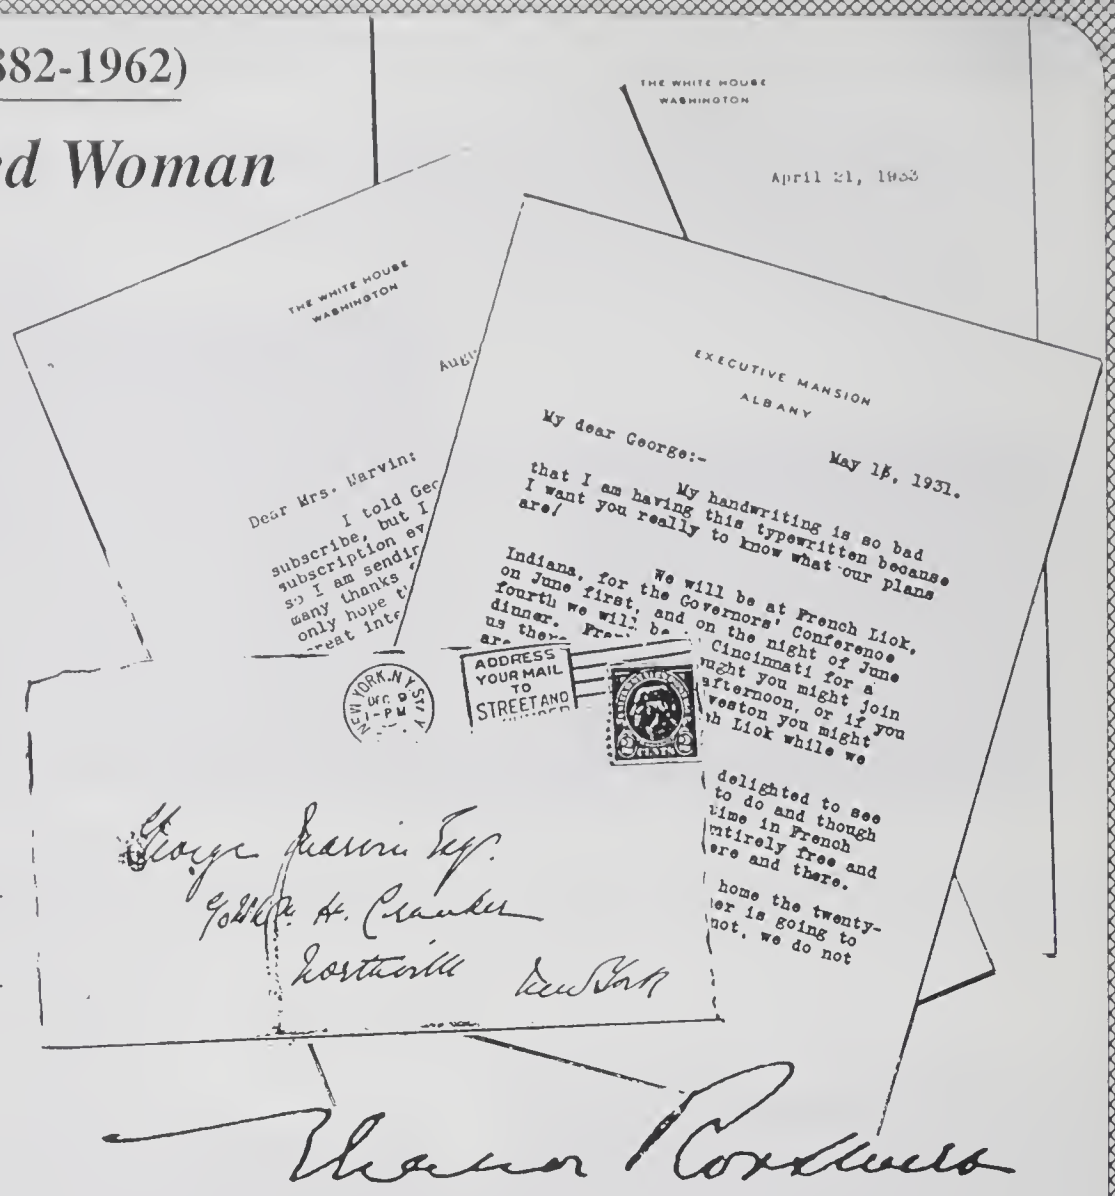
ELEANOR ROOSEVELT • (1882-1962)

Perhaps The Most Admired Woman Of The 20th Century!



First Lady and wife of Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd President of the United States. Niece of Theodore Roosevelt and distant cousin of Franklin D.Roosevelt, whom she married in 1905. Eleanor was a tireless humanitarian, widely admired for her support of liberal causes. She also took up extensive political work during her husband's illness from polio and proved herself an invaluable social adviser to him when he became President.

In 1941, she was made Assistant Director of the office of Civilian Defense. After the death of President Roosevelt in 1945, she expanded the scope of her activities, becoming a delegate to the UN Assembly in 1946, Chairman of the UN Human Rights Commission (1947-1951), and US Representative at the General Assembly (1945-1952). Mrs. Roosevelt was also Chairman of the American UN Association and, in 1948, helped draft and secure adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. As an accomplished author, Mrs. Roosevelt's books include: This Is My Story (1937), The Lady Of The White House (1938), The Moral Basis Of Democracy (1940), India And The Awakening East (1953), On My Own (1958), and her autobiography (1962).

Superior Stamp & Coin Co. is proud to offer a collection of personal letters written and signed by Eleanor Roosevelt on Executive Mansion and White House stationery, to George Marvin dated from May 16, 1931 to December 15, 1934. George Marvin attended Groton Prep School at the same time as Franklin D. Roosevelt. It is not known if he was a student or a professor, but he and F.D.R. were close personal friends.

As time wore on, however, Mr. Marvin became an alcoholic and a nuisance, forcing F.D.R. to give up on him. But Eleanor, being the charismatic humanitarian, stood tall and maintained a close friendship with George as can be seen through these splendid little letters.

Classic Marilyn Monroe Items

$199 each
The pair for $375

A gentleman recently walked into our store with this fantastic group of original Marilyn Monroe items.

He had been the production manager at Brain Metal Products during the early 1950s when these pieces were produced. He saved one box of trays (10 pieces), one set of coasters, and a deck of cards.

All of the pieces are in mint condition and this may be the only group of these items that have survived in this pristine condition.

The trays are metal and measure 17 1/4" x 12 1/2". Each is virtually perfect, with bright original colors and not a hint of rust or damage. They have a red background with a dark red boarder, and a printed signature at the bottom.

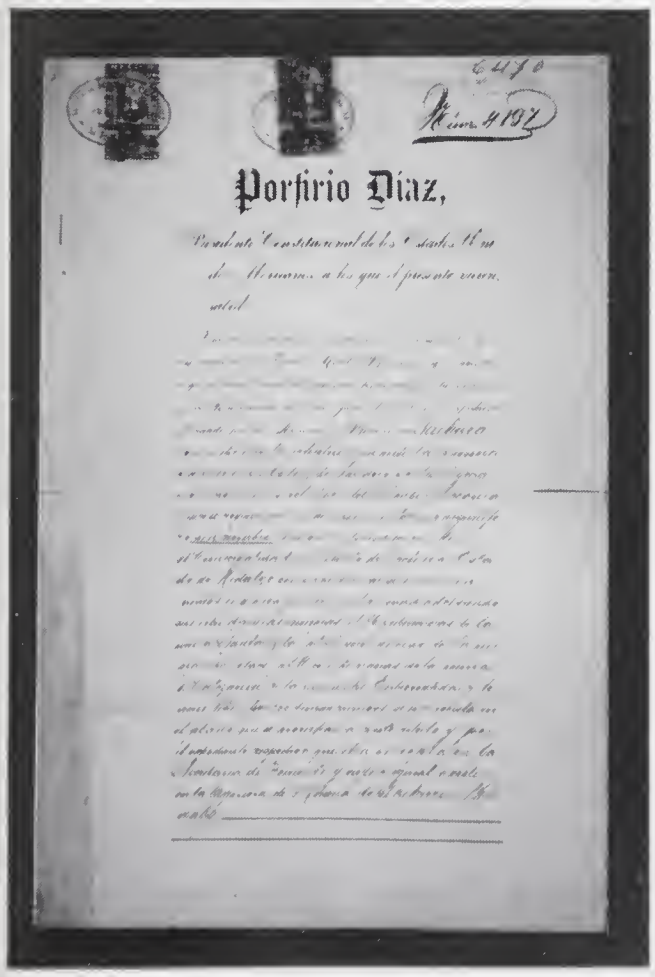
Mexican Presidential Documents

These large, heavy paper documents were issued during the presidency of Porfirio Diaz. Each is approximately 11" x 17" and opens to twice its actual size. These documents give title to a silver mine in Mexico. Each bears revenue stamps from 1901 and 1902 and many have hand endorsements with signatures. Each includes a large signature by Diaz.



General Porfirio Diaz was president of Mexico from 1876 to 1880. He then turned his office over to General Manuel Gonzalez (Diaz' trusted Commander, who defeated the forces of Lerdo at the Battle of Tecoac). Diaz then had the Constitution changed so as to permit himself to be re-elected for an infinite number of times.

After 30 years of rule, a president usually assumes the role of dictator. Francisco Madero opposed Diaz in the 1910 election, but was defeated and forced to flee to the United States. After the success of several revolutionary battles won by the forces of Madero, the aging Diaz abdicated and went into exile. He left on a steamer from Vera Cruz in May, 1911, and died just a few years later in Paris on July 2, 1915.

These large, interesting Diaz documents are loaded with signatures, and they include hand made maps showing actual location of the claim. No two papers are alike. They are extremely interesting and suitable for display purposes.

Some pieces are slightly torn, taped, or stapled, so order early to receive the nicest pieces. We only have about a dozen available.
